

DC International School

Washington, DC, USA

Architekt	Perkins Eastman, Washington, USA
Fassade	Largo Swisspearl Reflex Champagne 9290
Standort	1400 Main Drive, Washington, DC 20012, USA
Fotograf	Brycen Fischer Photography LLC, Lutherville, USA
Gebäudeart	Educational

SWISSPEARL

Completing the “E” is what the team at Perkins Eastman DC calls their addition. In the late 1920s and early 1930s as a nurse’s dormitory, it was planned that the building would have three wings, but it ended up with only two. For this reason the building sat as an “F” rather than an “E”. So completing the “E” doesn’t mean replicating the existing building’s style, footprint, or materials. It means making the old building work in its new life as a school. The addition of the brick facade shows continuation with the old, while the contemporary elevations covered in Swisspearl signal change: of function, of users, and of attitude.

